The PACE model, developed by Dan Hughes, explores how to utilise Pace, Acceptance, Curiosity and Empathy to support young people and help them feel safe and build trusting relationships.

The Importance of Connection This model explores research that suggests connection to self, others and nature can improve wellbeing. It also provides some suggestions of ways young people can be supported to achieve this.

Flow Theory

Flow is a state where a person is fully immersed in an activity. It involves energised focus, full involvement and enjoyment. This infographics highlights how Flow can be applied in the classroom.
